MANAGER

D. W. (Pat) SAMUEL,

JUDGE

LOYD JINKENS,
Fort Worth, Texas
Western Judge

D. W. (Pat) Samuel, Vancouver, has been judging horses in Canada, the United States and New Zealand for the past 10 years. He is a senior judge in both the Canadian and American Horse Show associations and has officiated at most of the larger shows on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Samuel was chairman of zone five (British Columbia) of the Canadian Horse Show Association, manager of the Vancouver International Horse show, and president of the northwest border zone of the Washington State Horsemen's Association.

THE CITY OF CALGARY EXTENDS A HEARTY WELCOME

This 1956 Calgary Horse Show is the culmination of many successful shows staged by the Alberta Light Horse Association. This year, under arrangements made through the Calgary Exhibition Board, the show moves into the Stampede Corral. An expected thirty to forty thousand persons will witness the event. With entries drawn from all over Western Canada, the Calgary Horse Show is now one of the major winter attractions of its kind in North America.

Calgary citizens may well be proud of those who have made all this possible.

We extend a hearty welcome and warm hospitality to our visitors.

You don't have to be an expert to enjoy the Calgary Horse Show

You don't have to be an expert to understand or enjoy a horse show. In the past one has often heard the remark: "I don't think I'll bother going to the horse show — I simply don't know anything about horses . . ."

The horse show of the present day is planned and carried out as both an attraction for the general public, and a show window for the light horse industry. You will find that all events will be explained to you by an experienced commentator, and if you require further information about the various breeds of horses, you will find the information in this program.

Horses and horse shows have their own language and technicalities, the same as any other line of sport, because a horse show is a sporting venture, both for exhibitors, riders and spectators.

The height of a horse is measured in hands and inches. A hand is four inches. The figure 15.2 after a horse's name in the catalogue means it is 15 hands and 2 inches high. The measurement is taken from the ground in a perpendicular line to the withers which is where the shoulder and neck join the body. Ponies do not exceed 14.2.

A horse does most of its growing in the first three years but usually does not reach full stature until about six years old, and in the case of the light breeds can grow to be 17 hands—the heavy breeds even taller. The age of a horse is indicated by technicalities of its teeth.

After a horse has reached the age of nine it is referred to as "aged." The normal working age of a horse is about 17 to 20 years, although history reports horses lived to 64. A 15 hands, lightly built animal will weigh about 1000 pounds and a heavy draft horse perhaps over a ton. Horses may be gray, dun or roan, bay or brown, black or chestnut.

Subject to the odd exception or throwback, if two chestnuts are mated, they produce only a chestnut; two roans can produce any of the other colours but gray; a gray must have at least one grey parent. The gray end if the list is "dominant" and the chestnut end is "recessive."

A horse cannot produce a more dominant colour than its own. Chestnut is not the colour of a horse-chestnut; the horse of that colour is a bay horse. A chestnut varies from liver coloured to golden. Black and white horses are known as piebalds, and brown and white as skewbalds—both have been referred to as pintos. The term "Thoroughbred" is often used erroneously when "pure bred" is the correct term, e.g., as applied to say hackneys or clydesdales.

The thoroughbred is one particular breed of horse usually associated primarily with racing. In England a thoroughbred is a horse whose sire and dam both trace to ancestors in the first general stud book published in 1791. In the U.S.A. they have their own stud book founded later than that date, and in Canada we follow the U.S.A. regulations.

Here are some of the classes you will see:

SADDLE HORSES

Saddle horses are divided into two divisions or groups, the three-gaited and the five-gaited. Individuals in both groups may have been bred from the same stock, but fall into one group or the other because of natural aptitude or of special training.

Three-Gaited Saddle Horse—Three-gaited saddle horses are shown at the walk, trot, and canter. Style requires their manes to be clipped short to accentuate their long arching necks. They carry the tail high and, in the show ring, should exhibit brilliance at all three gaits.

The Five-Gaited Saddle Horse—The five-gaited saddle horse, as their name implies, shows two additional gaits besides the walk, trot, and canter. These are the "Slow Gait" and the "Rack." The slow gait is a four-beat gait, as is the rack. The only difference between the two is that the rack is executed at a much faster speed. The rack is exactly the opposite of the walk. When a horse is walking, he has three feet on the ground and one foot in the air; when the horse is racking, he has three feet in the air and one foot on the ground. These two additional gaits give the horse a particularly smooth and rhythmical motion, their beauty being enhanced by a beautiful mane and full-length flowing tail.

HUNTERS

Hunters are horses, used under saddle, having the speed and endurance to follow a pack of hounds across country and the jumping ability and sense to carry their riders safely over obstacles of varying heights and shapes. Their conformation, i.e., the way they are made, is considered in judging them.

Weight Classifications—Hunters are divided into three classes—lightweight, middle - weight, and heavy - weight. Sometimes both middle and heavy-weight hunters are exhibited in one class, owing to the scarcity of heavy-weight hunters.

Light-weight, Middle-weight and Heavy-weight — A light-weight Hunter is one capable of carrying 160 pounds across country; a middle-weight Hunter, one capable of carrying 180 pounds; and a heavy-weight Hunter, one capable of carrying 200 pounds.

JUMPERS

Classes for open jumpers are probably the most popular with the general public. For one thing the conditions are easily understood, in that the performance of the horse in jumping the obstacles is all that counts. The method of scoring is plainly described under Rules on Judging Hunters and Jumpers.

REINED COW HORSES

The Western Stock Horse is one of the most essential animals we have in the West. It would be impossible to operate a stock ranch without them. The horses become so proficient in turning, stopping, starting, and cutting out and helping in the branding of cattle that they are almost human.

In every horse show in the West there is a class for cow horses, and the horsemen on the ranches take great pride in preparing, schooling and training their mounts for this particular class. This class, as with Hunters and Jumpers, is divided by weight. There is the light-weight cow horse, and the heavy-weight. The light-weight should not be over 1,100 pounds and the heavy-weight over 1,100 pounds.

PALOMINOS

When Cortez sailed from Spain on his conquest of Mexico, he brought with him 16 horses, one of which was a color similar to the Palomino. A historian with him recorded the size, characteristics and color of each horse. When, on a subsequent voyage to Mexico, Cortez discovered California, it is logical to presume that he brought his horses with him. Between voyages is it further reasonable to take for granted that he augmented his few horses by breeding them.

A great deal more is unknown about the Palomino than is known. The histories of 1880 reveal reference to the name of Palomino, the name being used first in Santa Barbara about 285 years after the first arrival of the horse in this country. They were known as "Isabellas" in Mexico due to the fact that Queen Isabella of Spain used a coach drawn by Palomilla, which is defined by Spanish dictionaries as "a cream-colored horse with white mane and tail." The word Palomino is undoubtedly a patois of the more correct Palomilla.

THE FINE HARNESS HORSE

A fine harness horse must be of the American Saddle Horse Breed, have full mane and tail and when shown in harness must wear light harness with a snaffle bit and be shown to an appropriate four-wheeled vehicle. They are shown only at two gaits — a walk and an animated park trot. Excessive speed is not required, in fact it is penalized. A fine harness horse should be exactly what the name implies, and should have extreme finish and brilliance.

CONFORMATION

By "conformation" is meant the horse's proportions both as a whole and in detail — his shape and the relative balance and proportions of his various parts. To judge conformation more clearly the judges often order the horses stripped of their saddles and lined up. Long, arching necks, level, short backs, symmetrically coupled fore and hind quarters, and well made feet and legs are carefully considered and effect final awards.

Cutting horse competition should prove interesting

CUTTING HORSES

The Cutting Horse is a working stock horse with a high economic value. He can earn his keep at home and then go to a Contest and put on a splendid and entertaining performance to the spectator by presenting a colorful picture of range work at its best. Performance, regardless of color, sex or breed, is the sole guide to his value; that is, the ability to enter a herd of cattle, cut an animal out of the herd for shipment to market, doctoring or moving to another pasture; and prevent this animal from returning to the herd.

Cow sense in its highest degree is shown as this horse anticipates every movement of the animal and does his

HACKS

Entries in the hack division are usually represented by Thoroughbreds and half-breds. They are known as riding horses rather than saddle horses, to distinguish them from the gaited horses. They have a smooth walk, trot and canter and majority carry full manes and tails. Many champion hacks have been raised in this district.

TECHNICAL TERMS

To equalize competition at a horse show, it is necessary to differentiate between horses and ponies. Therefore, height is made the basis for size classifications in each of the following divisions: Harness Horses, Harness Ponies, Saddle Ponies, and Three-Gaited Saddle Horses.

Harness Horses Standing— When the harness horses or ponies are "lined up" standing side by side in the show ring, it will be noticed that they "spread" by extending the fore and hind legs. There is a reason for this. When carriages were in general use, the horses were taught to "spread" so that they could not move suddenly at some unexpected noise, when the lady was stepping in or out of her carriage. If a horse is "spread" he must collect himself before he can begin a forward movement. The custom still remains in standing harness horses.

own thinking and acting with little help from the rider. A Cutting Horse is particularly judged on his natural ability as he works with a loose rein and maintains the proper balance to be able to move in any direction quickly. Quite often a Cutting Horse has to block an animal that has made up his mind to return to the herd. When this happens these horses do a creditable job at close quarters.

Plenty of ranch experience is the background for the development of the good judgment necessary for the Cutting Horse to out-manoeuvre the animal being cut out without disturbing the herd. As the Cutting Horse stops and turns to counter every move made by the animal being cut out, he well rewards his rider's confidence by seldom making a mistake.

HORSEPOWER IS STILL BUILDING ALBERTA!

The power generating facilities of Calgary Power Ltd. can now deliver over 300,000 horse-power. With the expansion of generating plants now under construction or planned, this figure will be increased to almost 500,000 horse-power by the end of 1958.

Calgary Power is keeping ahead of the demand for power in this rapidly growing Province, to ensure an adequate supply for use in the home, on the farm and for industrial use.

Here is something to remember, too, electricity is today's biggest bargain.

FOR GARDENING ...

HORSEPOWER'S BETTER THAN MANPOWER

Just $165.00 buys the best rotary tiller for the average garden. The Roto-Hoe plows, discs and cultivates in one easy operation . . . no implements to change. There's an efficient 20" Rotary Cutter attachment at $55.00 for your lawn or weeds. Ask your nearest dealer for a demonstration or write your distributor for a free folder.
